

The Real Story Behind The Boat That Rocked Unveiled in a Captivating Autobiography by Roger "Twiggy" Day

Prepare to be transported back in time to the swinging 60s, with the release of Pirate of the Airwaves, by renowned pirate DJ, Roger "Twiggy" Day. Through his enthralling autobiography, Day offers an extraordinary glimpse into the world of Pirate Radio, a world of independent broadcasting he pioneered, that shaped an entire generation.

Step into the shoes of Roger Day, a young boy from humble beginnings who dreamt of nothing more than being a radio DJ. It all began in the cozy front room of his parents' guest house in Margate, where he delighted in spinning records for his school friends. Little did he know that his passion for music would ignite a meteoric rise to becoming the face of 60s Pirate Radio.

Throughout his remarkable career, Roger Day's voice resonated on disco floors across the UK and echoed through the airwaves of Swinging Radio England, Radio Caroline (where he boldly defied government pirate radio legislation and risked jail), Radio Luxembourg, Radio Northsea International, and various independent radios. His trailblazing spirit and refusal to back down in the face of adversity earned him a spot on the BBC, and he now broadcasts regularly on the new national station, Boom Radio.

A true music enthusiast, Roger Day has rubbed shoulders with some of the industry's biggest stars. From touring with the Beach Boys to interviewing iconic figures, such as Elton John, Brian May, Stevie Nicks, Alice Cooper, Bonnie Tyler, Meatloaf, Graham Nash, Joe Walsh, Andy Williams, Cliff Richard, and Dire Straits, among countless others, he has created a vast and impressive legacy.

Remarkably, Roger Day holds the unique record of hosting a daily radio program since May 1966, a testament to his enduring passion for radio and music. His unwavering commitment to his craft has touched the lives of countless listeners over the decades.

As this true story behind the 2009 film The Boat That Rocked hits bookshelves, readers young and old are invited to embark on this extraordinary journey that celebrates the spirit of independence, creativity, and the power of following one's dreams.
